First stakeholders meeting on medical devices

Dear ADDE members and supporters, the first stakeholder meeting in Brussels on 23 February provided a great opportunity for promoting European dentistry and securing the interests of dental professionals and patients in light of the new medical device regulations. Various dental associations and members participated in the first-rate event, which provided insights into the new medical device regulations. Two European Union experts spoke about the regulatory framework's intended impact and outcomes.

European Parliament adopts new medical device regulations

The European Commission has adopted two regulations on medical devices that are aimed at establishing a modernised and more robust European Union legislative framework. To allow manufacturers and authorities to adapt, the new rules will only apply after a transitional period, namely three years after publication for the regulation on medical devices and five years after publication for the regulation on in vitro diagnostic medical devices.

New survey on European dental trade announced at IDS

At this year's IDS, the Association of Dental Dealers in Europe (ADDE) has presented the new edition of its market review, the 2017 Survey on the European Dental Trade. Again produced in collaboration with the Federation of the European Dental Industry, the report indicates a further shift towards digital dentistry, manifesting in overall growth of online shopping and use of CAD/CAM systems and intra-oral scanners. The publication will be available in late April on www.adde.info in hard and digital copy.
